General

In accordance with the Labour Code (Articles L4141-1 and L4141-2), employers must organise and provide information to workers on health and safety risks and the measures taken to address them.

Fictis Prévention has developed a training resource that presents the various health and safety risks associated with an employee's workplace in the tertiary sector.

It provides essential information for understanding each risk and thus adopting specific preventive measures on a daily basis.

The training resource is available in a digital format and can be used on a computer or tablet.

Audience

This support is intended for all employees, in particular:

- to new recruits;
- to temporary staff;
- to trainees.

Objectives of the training

At the end of the training, the learner will be able to:

- identify the main hazards in the company;
- be aware of the risk factors related to health and safety at work;
- be aware of preventive measures.
